The western belt forecast, which called The western belt forecast, which called for nothing more than showers in southwest Texas, was a disappointment to early sellers, and there was covering enough to raily prices to 31,50c for December, or 85 points from the low level of the morning. This advance met another flurry of realizing or local selling and the market was very irregular late in the forenoon, but was steadled around midday by the detailed weather report, which failed to show as much precipitation in Texas as expected.

Accessions to the wider and more active market of the early afternoon embraced coal shores, notably Norfolk & Western and Pittsburgh & West Virginia and Western Union Telegraph. Shippings and specialties eased slightly. Industrials showing no material change.

"Events of the last week are deeply significant for the German nation and its rulers. They offset the pan-German arguments that America was bluffing and would not fight; that the American army actually was being made ready to meet Japan; that German submarines would prevent transfer of any American army, as they would blockade the coasts of France, and that neutrals would rally to the support of Germany. German people now are paying for this. Fortunately, the unit of the high command continues."

New York, Aug. 20.—The firmness of the market in these dull days reflects the confidence of the banking and investment world in the honesty of purpose of Mr. McAdoo, who is to finally pass on the terms of the new government bond issue and of the railroad contract. I feel that in both he will give the people a square deal that will make for better security prices not long hence. We are curity prices not long hence. We are also pleased by the determined way in which he is combatting some of the radical insanity of the farmers of the radical insanity of the farmers of the new revenue bill, and we believe that either in the ways and meabs committee or in the senate his views will finally prevail. While there will not be much of a market holders of stocks will sit tight.

NOW'S TIME TO LAY IN WINTER COAL

Stocks Heavy Now, but Later on There Will Be None, and Consumers Are Warned.

It is believed that a large number of consumers have not yet laid in their supply of coal. The dealers state that at present they have a liberal supply of fuel on hand and that, while most of their customers responded to the request of the fuel administration and ordered their coal supply, there seems to remain yet a long list of those who did not. There are some people who have not given the idea of laying in their winter's supply of coal a thought. These people are urged by the administration to place their orders at once, in order to assist in every way possible in avoiding a serious fuel short're this coming winter. The fuel yards in Chattanooga are well supplied now. However, two months from now cold weather will be approaching, the railroads will not move supplies as fast as they have been doing this past summer and the dealers will be kept busy keeping the essential war plants going and delivering coal to people who have ordered in advance. Those who have not ordered their coal in most cases will stand little chance of getting a supply, unless they are cases where it was absolutely impossible. getting a supply, unless they are cases where it was absolutely impossible from a financial standpoint for them to purchase coal this summer.
